Are you too author of that article?

"Yes, sir."

Mr. Thom handed the witness a letter and asked if he wrote it. Mr. Byrd said he did. It was a letter addressed to Mr. Small, enclosing the article published December 23d. It directed that 2,000 copies of the paper of that date be sent to Ginn & Co., 100 to him (Byrd), I to every member of the Logislature, I to each of the school superintendents and teachers; also stating that a large number of other names would be sent him. He directed Mr. Small to send bill to him. Mr. Byrd wrote that it would be a splendid thing for Mr. Small and the Pilot.

Answer. "It did."

TREASURER ZACHARY.

Mr. R. Y. Zachary said he was a director and tressurer of the company, ead he talked with Mr. Small and some others of the directors as to the character of this article before its publication. Mr. Small read many of its passages to him and assured him that he would see that nothing libelous should appear in the paper. "I have no desire to shirk any responsibility in the matter, I think Mr. Small tried to be very careful about what he printed and he conferred with soveral of us about it. I do not remember if I attended a meeting of the board of directors of the minutes of the adoption of text books in June to the subject of the publication of this article came up at that meeting. If the minutes asy that Mr. Small resigned at that meeting it is true, I do not think the subject of his resignation came up on account of this article. I think he mentioned other causes."

Mr. Small said: We were very close in our relations regarding the Pilot. We often consulted as to the advisability of being extremely careful as to what we should publish, owing to our peculiar position before the public, I remember your saying to me that you old grudge against Mr. Massey. You told me of your fears before the article was published, that the public would attribute it to animus on our part against Mr. Massey on account of the past controversy between us.
